

Simon Wall – Tenor

SIMON WALL held a choral scholarship at St John's College, Cambridge, before taking up a scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music in London.

In 2003 he premiered solos in John Tavener's epic The Veil of the Temple, at both the Lincoln Center, New York and at the BBC Proms. He has appeared as a soloist for Laurence Cummings, John Eliot Gardiner, Richard Hickox, Stephen Layton, John Rutter, and Sir David Willcocks.

Operas include Orfeo and Fairy Queen with Emmanuel Haim, both for Opera de Lille and Opera du Rhin. He also created the role of Owl in The Birds by Ed Hughes, which premiered at the City of London Festival in July 2005. His 2008 Temple Festival Dido and Aeneas Sailor saw Andrew Porter/The Times describing him as 'a model of unforced, attractively direct English singing'.

Recordings include Barber's operetta A Hand of Bridge, conducted by Marin Alsop, with the Royal Scottish National Orchestra, Tavener's Veil of the Temple, directed by Stephen Layton, Caccini songs with La Nuova Musica, Charles Wood's St Mark Passion (Evangelist) with the choir of Jesus College, Cambridge, Monteverdi Vespers with The Rodolfus Choir and Lamenti with Emmanuelle Haïm and Le Concert d'Astrée.

During Summer '09 Simon performed the St Matthew Passion Evangelist at Snape Maltings for Mazaaki Suzuki; the Gilles Requiem at Dartington for Andrew Parrott; a John McCabe premiere at the 2009 Three Choirs Festival and for BBC Radio 3; the title role in Handel's Jephte at the 15th Haapsalu Early Music Festival, Estonia and a BBC chamber Prom with Iestyn Davis, Richard Egarr and AAM.
